TO
OUR GOOD FRIEND
AND HONORED PRESIDENT

JOHN MARTIN THOMAS

THIS LITTLE VOLUME IS LOYALLY DEDICATED BY THE CLASS OF NINETEEN
TEN

Dedication

IT HAS been the custom of the Junior Class to choose from the trustees, alumni or faculty that man whom they consider to have done the most for Middlebury during the preceding year, and to dedicate their annual to him. It is a good custom and one which we would follow. In view of the events of the past year, the choice of Nineteen Ten could not but be unanimous.

Now and then you meet a man whose personal magnetism grips you, pulls you whether you will or no. Such men are rare. Add to that magnetism the highest ideals and aspirations, back it up with good, practical common sense, and you have a still more rare combination. When a man thus endowed becomes the head of a time-honored institution, ripe for further advancement, that institution cannot but feel a new vigor and vitality. Dr. Thomas was inaugurated as president of Middlebury College in June, 1908. Since that time he has raised a hundred thousand dollars more endowment; he has secured an additional appropriation from the State Legislature of $6,000 a year, and has made hosts of influential friends for the college. So much in brief for external changes which he has wrought; the internal have not been less. The whole curriculum has been broadened, new departments of pedagogy and science have been founded, several new members have been added to the faculty, standards of work have been raised and scholarships readjusted, and the entire student body has been brought into the fullest harmony with the administration. Surely no small amount to have accomplished in less than a year. Moreover these changes have not been made hastily and at random. Rather they are the first steps in the systematic development of old Midd. More will follow as fast as we are prepared to make use of them.

President Brainerd in his long career has laid the foundations of the "New Middlebury" and laid them firmly upon the bed-rock. His work is nobly done and he has stepped aside for a well-earned rest. It is now time to rear a superstructure worthy of the foundation and to this task President Thomas is dedicating his life. He is the right man in the right place. He has the executive ability, the wisdom, and the strength necessary for such an undertaking. Every man and every woman in the old college believes in him and trusts him, and, as a slight mark of that absolute trust and confidence in his strength and wisdom, to him we dedicate our book.

Greeting

LUMNI and friends:

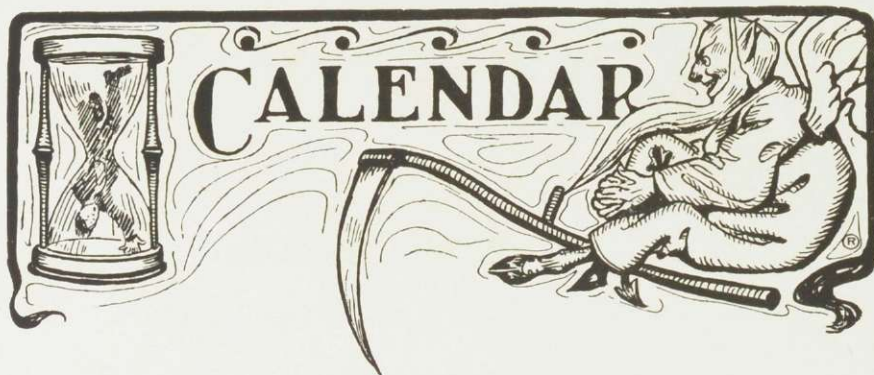

At last we are ready to place this year-book of old Midd. in your hands. May you read in it the warmth of the greetings which we, the undergraduates, wish to send you; may you find in it evidences of the gratitude which we feel toward you, and may it, by recalling your own student days, bind you and us more closely together.

We have endeavored to record carefully the events of the past year in convenient form. Here and there we have added a touch of student life to give the book a flavor. As far as possible we have omitted editorial articles and explanations, believing that few will be needed by those whose hearts still tingle at the mention of Alma Mater, and that by those of our patrons who are disposed justly to criticize the result of our toil, no amount of preface or excuse would be accepted in extenuation of the mistakes we have made. We have styled our effort the "Kaleidoscope," trusting that some small measure of the merit borne by former Kaleidoscopes may be our portion.

In regard to time, we are fortunate. The year 1908 is the span connecting the worthy administration of President Brainerd and that of President Thomas. Every loyal son and daughter sees a larger future for the dear old college shining brightly before us. We know that it is coming, and if by reason of this little volume we shall assist even to a slight degree in the bringing nearer of that future, we shall be more than satisfied.

But enough; here is the book. We hope you'll like it, if not—well, it can't be changed now, so adieu,

THE EDITORS.

Senior Innovation

IKE to the loving links that bind our hearts to thine, O Alma Mater, has been the concord of our ambitions with thy bark's new sailings.

A new and skillful pilot now guides her into seas all foreign and as we prepare to disembark upon shores, yet to be explored, our hearts beat with quickened throbs as the waves of memory surge about us.

From the deck, we behold the setting of our solar planet that lightened the days, now consummate in years, and then the lunar orb, our goal, rises over the horizon of a strange and darksome world.

Lo! in the distance rise the shores of our strange home. Waft us safely, sweet Alma Mater, Midd. our Goddess, and ever attend our stormy voyage.

When the lapse of a few more hurried hours calls forth the tears of sad farewells to thee and to our companion crew, accept these slight offerings, a few innovations, in token of thy grace.

Let the spoils of victory over deadly King "Ram" enrich thy shrines and added be the week's revel of the month of May and thirdly hear our pledge to covet thy honors and make good fellowship prevail.

These attainments, our lives contribute to the safe moorings of thy novitiate helmsman. Culminate our fond hopes tho' they be sprinkled with bitter longings for a more lengthy course. For like the sad pilgrims of old, we must wave our farewells and plant the treasures gathered from thy store upon the soil of realms yet unconquered.

Grant and grant again, thy blessings upon us the first offspring of thy newly-sceptered king.

Junior History

E stand today, dear class-mates, as a glowing example of the survival of the fittest. Since September 20, 1906 the avenging sword of circumstance has ravaged our ranks and felled thirty of our number.

But it is with pride that we now turn the pages of memory and find Success! Success! Success! Proof undeniable, that strength does not lie wholly in numbers.

We entered Middlebury, sixty-seven strong, and impressed upper-classmen and faculty by our wonderful air of dignity, coupled with defiant ability. The Sophomores were so chagrined that they hastily abolished the publication of "Freshman Rams" on account of lack of material.

Everywhere our valor asserted itself. No sooner had our foes in 1909 declared war than one of our gallant knights performed a deed of daring, unequalled in the history of inter-class warfare, nay, never to be preceded by warriors to come. And proudly waved our emblem fair, taunting the courage of every 1909-er.

Victory succeeded victory and the laurel crowned our efforts at every onset. When anxiety had nearly devoured the Sophs and after announcing the date of our banquet, we challenged 1909 to prevent our going. Now the record stands of that ever memorable struggle prior to our departure. How joyously we drank the toasts to our gallant warriors that evening!

Our Freshman dance revealed our superior ability as financiers. Departing from the example set for us, we carefully eluded any heavy debt that might weigh upon our shoulders and destroy the foundations of our enviable reputation.

But alas! our hearts were saddened when we came back as Sophomores for many of our number failed to return. Yet again our undaunted courage bore us well until we added to our laurels by giving the most brilliant Hop yet on record. Over the heads of the dancers waved the crimson and gray symbolic of the glowing courage that ever consumes the gloom that may strive to overwhelm us.

We have now assumed the role of upper classmen, and the jollity of Juniors becomes us well. Our goal, quality not quantity, shines incessantly before us, inspiring us to grasp the gracious gifts of our Alma Mater offered so abundantly thro' the medium of patient and enduring guardians. Only a short time will elapse before our farewells must be given. Let us appreciate the golden period.

PAINTER HALL IN WINTER GARB

Sophomore Egotism

It is with unbounded pleasure and a high degree of satisfaction that we grasp this opportunity to reveal to the public our superior merits. "We" are the acme of quantity and quality.

Lacking but two of leading in individual class enrollment we boast the lead in the number of men.

It has always seemed more or less mysterious that succeeding classes should find college demands so great a burden.

The idea of a scrap over a hat seemed absurd to us and by superior strength we won the coveted victory 8-5. Later being called upon to display our attitude for the proudly floating banner of the Sophs, we quietly removed the taunting emblem altho' without supplanting it by our own for as yet our wise councils forbade the choice of class colors.

Our forethought and discretion taught us delay was not the better part of valor so without further discussion we laid the plans for our Freshman Banquet. In the second week of college, we banquetted unrestrained and unmolested by friend or foe. Doubtless the fictitious fame of a disorderly repast reached your ears. We can only cry 'Avaunt vain Rumor, your source proves your fallacy.'

Pursuing our campaign of victories we challenged 1910 to a gridiron battle. Yes it was a tie. But credit is awarded to Miller's heroes.

Such uninterrupted success meant a cessation of hostilities until another year.

On our return, we proudly planted our standard and remarkable was the humble submission of 1912 for our green posters.

Their act was wise for how soon we asserted our rule for winning the hat scrap and quenching their life-blood in the immediate trials of Freshman-Sophomore warfare.

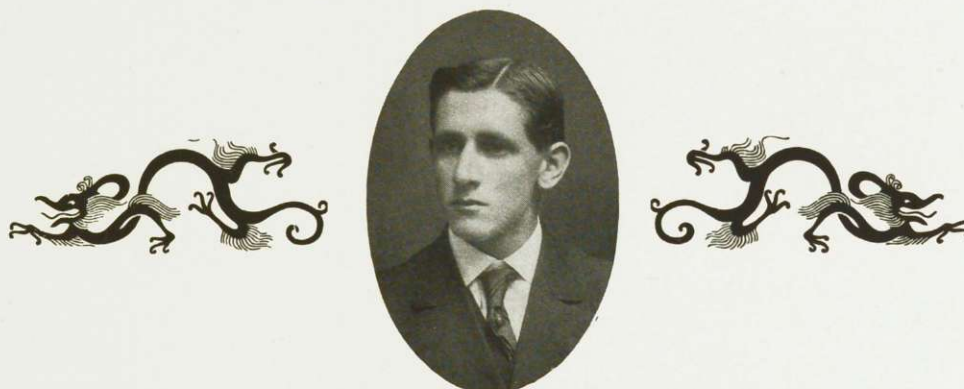

Our greatest achievement this year was our Hop. In the wee small hours of early dawn our colors were wafted to the breezes to hail the leaders of our revelry.

Perhaps this is proof enough to convince you of our sterling worth. If not, you may turn to the detailed annals of our historical volumes.

Warning!!! 'Pride goeth before a fall.'

A Freshman Attempt

MIDDLEBURY ON THE OTTER, February 1, 1909.

DEAR KALEIDOSCOPE:

If we had known that you were going to tell everybody about us, we might have tried harder to do something worth telling about. But everybody says we made a bad mistake at first, for we didn't bring "men" enough.

We didn't like Middlebury at first, for we were awfully scared all the time. Even the trees had funny green patches, all decorated with "don'ts" and "must do's," and we boys came near crying when we had to throw away our brand new hats that pa and ma loved to see us wear when we were smart high-school boys, or when we came home from the Academy. Some cruel, rough fellows called "Sophomores" told us we were "pea-green," and then they made us wear little caps with tiny green buttons, so the people would know about it.

For a few weeks some nice Juniors told us what to do and sort of looked after us, and that first Saturday, at the hat scrap, they hollered for us and told us a yell, but we couldn't give it for we didn't get enough hands on the hat. If they had let our girls help, we would have showed 'em.

Then came that awful mean trick of those same Sophomores. We had a nice new banner and wanted to put it on the flagpole, and every night we sat up late to do it those bad men were hiding to catch us, so we didn't dare go out.

We don't often get mad, for mamma says that isn't nice, but when the Sophomores told us we couldn't have a banquet, we just ran away one day, but oh! how they tied us when we were caught. But we planned to be mice and play when kitty was away, and we did, too, before we let those Sophomores see us another term.

We haven't had a dance yet, not because we are slow, but it isn't healthy for little boys and girls to stay up nights, but when we get big and strong, then we'll dance like the upper classmen.

This is all we've done, and we are sorry about it, too, but we'll keep on trying, and before 1912 you will be proud of us.

Now our fingers are so inky and tired, we must stop and go to bed, so

Good-night,

THE 1912 BABY.

THE CHAPEL

College Y. M. C. A.

7:00 TUESDAY EVE

The past year has been a period of steady growth for the Y.M.C.A. of Middlebury College. Amid the many college activities which take up so much of the students' time, the Association has endeavored to exert a quiet but persistent force upward toward a better moral and spiritual life. The results have not been disappointing. The total enrollment of the Association is fifty-three, thirty-two active members and twenty-one associate members.

The working plan of the Y. M. C. A. has been in general that of the past years. Early in the fall term, a joint reception of the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. is held in the Starr Library. This is to welcome the Freshmen, make them better acquainted with themselves and with the college body. Later a canvass of the students is made and the roll of members secured for the coming year. In addition to social events and the regular weekly meetings, systematic courses in the study of the Bible are arranged by the different classes.

This year the reception of the Christian Associations was held in the Library on Friday evening, October 2. There was a large attendance and an enjoyable evening was spent.

The attendance at the regular Tuesday evening meetings has been very good, especially during the fall term. At the beginning of the winter term, Bible study classes were organized. The present enrollment is sixteen members.

It is expected that the State Secretary will address the men of the college on the subject of Bible Study in the near future. Also several other speakers are planned for, and an illustrated lecture on Ceylon.

The Y. M. C. A. of Middlebury College

IN the Young Women's Christian Association is found the strong moral and spiritual uplift so much needed in the life of every institution. The association aims to give the student not only the distinctly religious interests, but has so broadened its original purpose that it now meets the needs of every phase of college life.

The membership in proportion to the number of women enrolled is most satisfactory. In fact, our numbers are so large that the former meeting place has become too small to accommodate us and we have retired, perforce, to the chapel room. It is most earnestly hoped that this arrangement is but temporary, and we are looking forward to the time when we may have a new and spacious home of our own.

But the active life of the association does not end with the mid-week service, whose quiet influences pervade the entire week. Classes have been formed for the study of missions and for the purpose of Bible study, and these are well attended. Our missionary work is not mere theory, real work is done in supporting, by means of pledges, the work done in Calcutta, India, and by our contributions to the support of the World's Work.

The social life of the organization begins with the opening of the college year, when a reception is tendered all the girls and a hearty welcome given the entering class. Then later in the term, comes the annual library-reception given by the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.; here the whole college meets with one common purpose; the promotion of the interests of our college, and the desire to extend our good fellowship and hearty co-operation to all. The social life is kept alive by occasional social evenings, and our annual banquet is hailed as one of the season's events.

The Silver Bay Committee is indeed making good. A greater love and interest in Silver Bay and all that it can come to mean to us is seen each year. Ten delegates last year instead of the three of the year before is inspiration enough for even greater efforts in that direction.

The association looks forward hopefully to the coming years and their increasing responsibilities, feeling that through Him that strengthens us we can indeed do all things.

Athletics

URING recent years it has been our policy in athletics to get the larger colleges upon our schedule. This certainly gains recognition for us in the athletic world but does not show up our teams in their proper strength. As long as the college is of its present size and facilities we cannot hope to rank in athletics with the institutions so much larger than our own.

It is not to be expected, that, without a gymnasium, with an inadequate training and coaching system and with such a small number of men to pick from, that we should be able to put out teams to play in the same class with the larger colleges and universities.

Then, too, there is the financial side. The modern system of training and coaching athletic teams needs more money than the students at Middlebury are able to raise. Until we have an Alumni Athletic Association whose members will be willing to help support our teams we cannot expect to "stack up" very high in athletics.

Much has been done since the closing of 1908 Foot-Ball season for the improvement of athletics. The new constitution which has been needed for years has just been adopted and under the new regime the athletics will be under the supervision of an athletic council composed of three alumni, three members of the faculty and three undergraduates.

This awakening in athletic affairs seems to point to the fact that the general feeling of prosperity and progress which President Thomas has instilled into the college has reached even the athletics. It shows that the men of the college mean to make the name of Middlebury as well known on the gridiron and diamond as the new Prex will in the educational world.

PICK

Review of 1908 Baseball Season

WITH the loss of only two regular men the team of 1908 was expected to bring especial glory to Middlebury in baseball.

Jupiter Pluvius did not seem to favor the sport, however, for Manager Stewart was forced to cancel four games on account of rain.

This fact is indicative of the adverse condition under which the team was forced to develop. The college was rich in material and Coach Fish of Dartmouth would undoubtedly have developed a record team, under more favorable weather conditions.

The game with Albany Law School was cancelled and the season opened with Clarkson Tech on the home grounds. Middlebury made a very creditable showing considering the inclemency of the weather and the miserable condition of the diamond. The final score gave the college team 14 while Buttolph held the visitors to five hits and allowed only one Clarkson man to cross the plate.

Goddard Seminary was our next opponent and the up-state prep school gave the college an interesting game. It was a pitchers' battle from start to finish, both sides landing but three hits. The eighth inning opened with three scores recorded for each team and it was Farr who drove in the winning run with a timely single.

Rensselaer Polytechnic came as far as Rutland the following Saturday but turned back on account of rain.

Next came our old rivals from Northfield and the Junior Week visitors saw Norwich shut out by the home team. Fisher was in fine trim and at no point in the game were the cadets dangerous, although the game was somewhat one-sided Middlebury showed marked improvement in team work and gave proof of the development which had been expected.

In an eleven inning game St. Lawrence defeated the home team 2 to 1. It looked like a clean victory for Middlebury, and would have been, but for the general weakness of the home team at bat. Both Fisher and Calder pitched excellent ball and the team work of the visitors was especially pleasing.

Union was our first opponent on the southern trip and although Middlebury was defeated by a score of 12 to 2, the game was more interesting than the score indicates.

Colgate, after the score at Union, expected an easy victory. The game opened with Fisher in the box for Middlebury and the big twirler held the hard-hitting Colgate team to two scores. Both teams made two runs in the first inning and no further scoring was done until the thirteenth when Farr's hit netted the needed run for Middlebury.

The second game scheduled with R. P. I., to be played in Troy, was checked by rain. After the cancelling of the Norwich game the season came to a close with a showing of four victories and two defeats.

SPORTS

VARSIY FOOTBALL

Football Season of 1908

F the standard of a season's athletics is judged by the summary of scores the football season of 1908 was not a success. The string of defeats, however, could not be laid to the fact that the college had an unusually poor season but, as previously mentioned, the teams which ran up the big scores against Middlebury were really a class higher in the game. The same team which was so badly beaten by the strong Williams eleven would be judged a snappy team when pitted against St. Lawrence or some other team of its own class.

With five of last year's eleven graduated and Fisher out of the game the prospects were anything but bright when Coach Austin arrived on September 30th. The Williams game was only two days off and "Dave" could not do much toward rounding up a team in so short a time.

The boys did their best in this opening game and fought hard but the heavy, well-drilled, Williams team rolled up 56 scores against them.

The following Saturday the team lined up against Norwich University at Northfield. Middlebury showed marked improvement but was rather weak in team work. The first half netted 18 points for the Cadets but in the last Norwich fought her hardest to score one touch-down, the final score being 23 to 0.

Through the untiring efforts of the coach a fast second team was organized the following week and the men who were in its line-up deserve special mention for their faithfulness to a duty that is always irksome. The "seconds" held together through the whole season and played several fast games with preparatory schools and clubs.

On October 14th Middlebury met St. Lawrence University on the home grounds and played a pretty game. Coleman, who was being tried out at center, broke through and blocked a kick, Miller recovered the ball and carried it down the field for a touch-down. A field goal by St. Lawrence left the final score 6 to 4 in Middlebury's favor.

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute played in Middlebury on Saturday of the same week and exhibited some excellent team work. When the final whistle blew R. P. I. had made six touch-downs for a total of 32 scores.

The following Saturday the team went to Middletown, Conn. to meet Wesleyan. This game showed what a handicap it is to be unable financially to take but two or three substitutes on the trips. The first half was very even, each side scoring one touch-down; but when the teams lined up for the second period Wesleyan had new men to put against the battered Middlebury team. The game ended Wesleyan 35, Middlebury 7.

On November 7th Norwich came to Middlebury expecting an easy victory. The visitors won by a score of 10 to 0, but they fought for every inch of their ground.

The game scheduled with Rhode Island State College at Kingston, R. I. being cancelled, Manager White secured a home game with St. Michael's College for that date. Middlebury took the game from the Winooski boys by a score of 6 to 0.

The last game of the season was played at Amherst on November 14th. Amherst found more of a proposition than the score of 51 to 5 indicates. In the first half the odds were somewhat in favor of Middlebury; but the crippled condition of the team soon told. Again the disadvantage of a limited squad asserted itself and the Middlebury men were soon so worn out that Amherst scored almost at will. Several of the men were injured so seriously that under different conditions they would have been carried from the field; but they held on doggedly until the finish.

One of the most appreciable features of the season was the faithful work of the second team. Early in the season they organized and Coleman '10 was elected captain. The development shown by the varsity was, in no small degree due to the practice given them by the seconds.

Assistant Manager Leach secured several games for the second eleven and they were all close and interesting. The first of these was played at Vergennes on October 10th with the strong High School team of that place and resulted in a tie 5 to 5.

On October 24th the Troy Conference Academy team came to Middlebury and defeated the seconds 7 to 5. The next game was played at Rutland against the fast St. Peters team, who won by one touchdown. But on Thanksgiving Day the seconds turned the tables on the Rutland boys, winning by a score of 6 to 4.

The parade given by the Freshmen between the halves of the R. P. I. game created much amusement in the grandstand and will probably be adopted as a custom by succeeding classes.

The foot-ball season of 1908 brought out that true college spirit, the spirit that supports a losing team. The eleven which fought so hard even in the face of defeat was backed in a manner most hearty and sincere by the student body and faculty.

1911 TRACK TEAM

Inter-Class Track Meet

One of the most interesting features of Junior Week was the Track Meet held May 15th. It was not up to the usual standard owing to the spongy condition of the track and the absence of several of the best men. The showing of the Juniors was poor, as several of their track men were busy with play and prom arrangements. The advisability of having the meet during Junior Week has been questioned, it being argued that necessarily the Juniors will be poorly represented because of the extra duties of their class during the week.

THE BARBARIANS

1911 BASKETBALL TEAM

Class Basketball

Season of 1908

Y an unbroken series of victories the fast team of 1911 took the class championship in basketball for the season of 1908. The other teams were very evenly matched, but the Freshmen were in a class by themselves, having such men as Barnes, Cleary and Peach to make up their team. These men were all of varsity calibre, and their team showed the college some real basketball.

At the time of this writing another season is about to close. The Juniors have developed an exceedingly fast team and at present are slightly ahead of the Sophomores in spite of their superior work of last year. It is impossible to foresee the final standing, but the scores so far seem to indicate that 1909 will be fourth; 1912, third; while 1910 and 1911 will be neck and neck at the finish.

1908 Tennis Tournament

COMMENCEMENT visitors saw the completion of a very interesting tennis tournament, when Bosworth, '11, by defeating Richmond, '08, won the cup and college championship.

The tournament was characterized by steady playing throughout, and several of the matches were especially fast.

The committee, Learned, '08, chairman; Vaughan, '08; Wheeler, '08; Shewbrooks, '09; Twitchell, '10, deserve credit for running off so successful a match.

The Dawning Era

With a promise of magic beauty the light of morning falls
And the ivy burns to crimson 'gainst the gray of chapel walls;
The slumber-damp on the meadows tones all to a silvery gray,
While the world in a hush of quiet awaits the coming day.
A fresh impulse is given to mankind with the rising sun,
In the sparkling cool of the morning all life and hope are one.

In the ceaseless surge of the ages, time rolls relentless on,
But the pulse of the world still quickens to meet a coming dawn.
From the stress and strife of warring to the mighty call of peace;
From the bounds of narrowed longings to a nation's rich increase;
From all that can fret and fetter the world in a night is turned.
In the light is fulfilled the promise for which in the dark we yearned.

To the heart and soul of the college a grand new day is given,
The dawn of the life of fulness for which brave hearts have striven.
The past with its note of striving, the past with its glow of fame,
Is left to the gods of silence, for the past is but a name.
In the light of day now dawning the future seems strangely fair,
And its hopes and fears and yearnings we leave to a Master's care.

Inauguration

THE morning of Wednesday, June 24, was warm and sultry. A little before ten o'clock a crowd of students, alumni, professors and visiting delegates were gathered before the chapel. Shortly after the hour the procession started. It was headed by the Middlebury Band, with Colonel T. M. Chapman as mounted marshall. Following the band were the undergraduates in order of classes, the Alumni by classes, the Alumni of other colleges, the Faculty, the Trustees, and the visiting delegates. As the long line wound slowly through the village, on the way to the Congregational Church where the services were held, it afforded a picturesque sight. The academic costumes and the large green and gold banner of '90, the class of the incoming President, contributed a striking array of color. At the church the procession halted and drew up in two long lines, between which those in the rear in order of rank passed into the church until all were inside.

The platform was occupied on the one side by the Trustees and recipients of honorary degrees, and on the other by the faculty and representatives from other colleges. At the center sat Senator Stewart, as presiding officer. On the right was the retiring president, Ezra Brainerd, D.D., LL.D., and on the left the incoming president, John Martin Thomas, D.D.

There was a hush upon the assembled people when President Brainerd arose to speak and to deliver the time-honored charter and keys to his successor. He was closing a term of long and faithful service as president of his Alma Mater, and it was with emotion that the audience beheld the impressive ceremony. The greetings from Alumni and Faculty were expressive of an appreciation of the work done by President Brainerd and hopeful of the future under the leadership of a new man. When the new president arose to speak, a wave of enthusiasm swept over the audience. Amidst lusty cheering and the waving of his class banner he was welcomed to the presidency of Middlebury College. During his address people listened with attention. His earnest voice and manner carried conviction. As he proceeded the interest increased and people forgot the heat of the day. A feeling of buoyant hope, inspired by perfect trust in the man at the throttle, filled the hearts of all.

In the course of his address President Thomas said:

"I am aware that I am taking up a great work, of large and persistent difficulty, weighted with consequences utterly beyond the vision of the keenest. Mistakes are inevitable, and I invoke your charity. I promise you my best, and I ask you for whatever help you think you ought to give me. I am certain that Middlebury College is needed, certain that she has a work, distinctive and separate, that cannot be done as well by any other institution. We have an individuality of our own, which we must preserve, but must also strengthen. Our entire endowment and our entire plant, taken together and added to the resources of any other college you might name, would not begin to do the educational work it is doing to-day right here. Our College is as fixed in the green hills as the archæan rock of Camel's Hump and Killington, being anchored by a quarter of a million of stone and marble buildings, and by the enthusiastic love and loyalty of hundreds of friends, mostly poor, but all rich in courage."

Again he said, "You can feed the hungry with bread at five cents a loaf. You can care for orphans at a few pennies a day. But the hunger of the mind, the deep hunger of the soul that presses out into the mysteries of life—that you can feed only with libraries, and with laboratories, and above all with men, not cheap men either, masterly men sufficient to the making of masters. These things cost, but they are worth all they cost. It is terrible to want bread; but it is more terrible to want knowledge, to want opportunity, to want a grip somewhere on the world's worthy work, and not to know just how to get it.

"The cripple on the street corner is a pitiable sight, but give me the college I want and I will find in the hills here somewhere a man who will help a hundred cripples. A city laid waste by floods calls for deepest sympathy; but with facilities almost at our doors we might train men who would plant forests to stay a thousand floods. The world's one need is men who can lead; I am sure that in our college we can make them still.

"I have before me the thrilling vision of the men of this little college, united in enthusiastic loyalty, enlisted as men who serve their country and their God, enlarging the work of our college until in the homes of the humble near and far the name of Middlebury shall speak hope and outlook for those who would prepare themselves largely to live, and by large lives bless the world."

Professor Henckels

Here's to "Dutchy," for fourteen years the friend of every student.

"Good fellows all united
We know the good old way
And while the lamps are lighted
Turn the night-time into day.
If now and then storms gather
And everything looks drear,
We will yet be gay, by night or day,
Anywhere where flows good cheer."

Jolly Student Days.

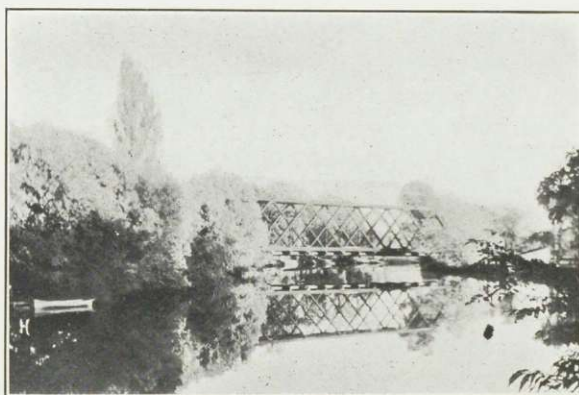

Fairfield Medals

EDWARD T. FAIRFIELD of Rutland, Editor of the Rutland Evening News, wishing to do something for the college in commemoration of the fact that his grandfather Rev. Micaiah Fairfield was a graduate of the college 100 years ago, in the class of 1809, has arranged to present $20 in gold to each of two students of the class of 1909, a young woman and a young man, who in the combined judgment of the Faculty and their classmates have rendered most useful service to the College during their Senior year. The basis of the determination will be as follows:

1. Thorough and painstaking scholarship, not only in the minutiae of the subjects pursued, but also in the broad principles of science and literature. (2) The furtherance of a healthful and enthusiastic college spirit, including influence in the direction of high moral ideals and worthy purposes, and in general such conduct as will promote the truest manhood in the student body. (3) Influence outside the College in extending her good name among those who should be her friends, and directing incoming students to Middlebury. (4) Athletic skill and sound physical development, with regard for the good name of the College for fairness and fair play as well as for ability to win, and with due attention to such physical culture as shall enable one to do his work in life well.

RAILROAD BRIDGE

A Talk to the Civics Club

President Thomas

R. PRESIDENT and Students of Middlebury: I am glad for this opportunity of coming together for better mutual understanding. Our College needs what a distinguished Alumnus once called "mutuality of information," between graduates and trustees, trustees and faculty, faculty and students, and students with one another. If each could know what the other is thinking about and trying to accomplish, we would all have better heart for our work. I shall therefore make liberal use in this address of the pronoun of the first person, and tell you in a plain, familiar manner some of the ideas I have had in mind in working for Middlebury.

There were two courses open to me when I was elected to the Presidency of our College. One was to plunge with all my might into the study of the theory of higher education, and to frame an ideal of what a College ought to be, irrespective of particular conditions or local needs. I might have drawn up a plan of an ideal College, as Milton sketched his outline of a seminary of learning, building upon no existing institution and having in mind no specific situation. Then I might have come here to force those ideals into actuality as thoroughly and rapidly as possible.

I will confess to you frankly that I distrusted my powers to proceed by that method. I was afraid I would be led astray into all sorts of cranky notions. A sensible Yankee, finding himself in possession of a run-down farm, would not raze the house and pull down the barns, because they were not just where he would like them, and then tear down all the fences to construct a farm anew as the most advanced theories would prescribe. He would rather patch up the old house to make it as convenient as possible, shingle the barn where it leaked, start at one field after another, and gradually get things into shape. Common sense, continuous tackling of the next best thing, and twelve hours a day would be his method, and he would succeed where the theorist would fail.

It seemed to me that the same sensible procedure was the wiser policy for my administration of this College. I determined to get an office, a place to do business and things to do my business with, and with as much common sense as I could summon, enter the most promising openings that offered and work to the limit of my strength. The first thing clearly was to get in touch with our Alumni, and therefore I had a card catalogue prepared of all former students, with their correct addresses. I can now draft a message to our Alumni in a few minutes at my desk of an evening, and within three days, with the facilities in the office alone, that message is on its way to every living person who has set foot within the walls of Middlebury. Four times since last Commencement I have sent out such communications, and over one third of our Alumni have made me some manner of reply. In less than a half minute in my office I can turn to my complete correspondence with any of these men.

I would not be just to myself if I made you think that I have no ideals, no dreams of what Middlebury ought to be. Perhaps I should say that I have tried to combine the two methods I have outlined, earnest thought on the ideals of collegiate training, and wise adaptation to local needs. An opportunist without principles will never accomplish much. One of my principles is that a College is a public institution, not a private experiment. We must set ourselves to the uplift of the community in which we find ourselves, and to the betterment of as large a territory as we are strong enough to reach. Our mission is not merely here and there to a favored individual whom we can entice to our benefits, but to the entire community from which we select promising material to train for leadership. If the good God lets me work for Middlebury twenty-five years, and if then there is a hamlet within fifty miles where the moral atmosphere is foul and bestial, that hamlet will be my failure,—and that no matter what endowment and laboratories we may have here. Some time within those twenty-five years I might have sent to that village a teacher, or a minister, or a doctor, who could have changed its whole life.

We are responsible for the improvement of conditions, commercial, moral, social, religious, in the entire country-side about us. My work is not to build buildings and to increase endowments, primarily, but to lift Vermont. I am grateful for the inspiration and enthusiasm that comes from that vision of our task.

You must remember that I cannot always be doing just what I would like to do, nor what you may think needs doing first. If you are travelling across country and run against a wall you cannot climb, it is imprudent to butt your head against it: it is better to explore if there is not an opening a little to one side. You have asked me why I do not raise money for a gymnasium. Now I believe in a gymnasium, and a good one, for Middlebury College. It is dull here winters, and you would be better morally for a chance to get physically tired. Some of you walk crooked, and we ought to have compulsory physical training to teach you to walk straight. I have tried to get a gymnasium: I have talked with at least six men who I thought could build one. I made one man cry in telling him how much we needed one, but I couldn't cash his tears. Now when I did get a chance through good Dr. Pearsons to raise the money for a Woman's Building, which we certainly need, was it not the dictum of common sense to secure that first? After the principle that a College exists for the community my next rule is to seize persistently the best opportunity that offers, and waste no time in idle regret that it is not something else.

My third rule is very short and simple, the one word work. What Vermont needs is work. What Middlebury College needs is work, work on the part of the faculty, work on the part of the students. I am persuaded it will require no great genius to make our College much larger and much better than she is to day: it will take only common sense and hard work. We are all loafers compared with Walter Scott, compared with some of our own Alumni in the great cities. Let us all get to work, and keep at it as long as we can stand. Suppose we do overwork: how can a man die better? Remember it is for Middlebury!

Publications

Publications

WHEN we look back over the years that are past, we find that the students of Middlebury College have not been lacking in literary enterprise. As early as the year 1830 there was a college periodical gotten out by the students. It was called "The Undergraduate" and was the first thing of its kind ever published in Middlebury. The first number came out in October, 1830. There were twenty-six numbers published, the last appearing in October, 1831.

The next periodical to appear was the "Philomathesian," published by a literary society of the college. The first number appeared during July, 1833; the last one, June, 1834, there being twelve numbers published.

It is not until March, 1876, that we again find a college periodical. It was then that "The Undergraduate" was revived, to continue in unbroken succession until July, 1902, when it ceased to exist.

For three years there was no college paper. Then in February, 1905, the first number of "The Campus" appeared. This paper has continued until the present time, being published from four to six times a year.

In addition to these we find that during the spring term of its Freshman year the class of '96 published a weekly called "ΗΑΦΡΟΔΙΤΗ."

In the year 1874 the Senior class got out the first college annual, which was called "The Kaleidoscope." They introduced their book to the world with the following foreword:

"It is only an echo of college life, a wandering ray from a student's bower, that comes to greet you. Behind the curtain of college life much there is that will bear recital—much that need not be told. But within these pages the veil has been lifted, you behold the painted gleam of a student's life. Through the "Kaleidoscope" you behold the true landscape ever changing in form and color."

Every succeeding year for five years the Senior class published a volume of the "Kaleidoscope." Then a year was missed, but the succeeding class of '81 brought out the seventh volume. That was the last volume issued by the Senior class. The next appeared in 1886 and was published by the Juniors. The four following Junior classes each published a volume. Then two years are skipped until '94 published Volume XIII. The class of '96 published Volume XIV, but owing to a slight mistake have called theirs Volume XIII.

During the interval between the appearance of Volume XIV and Volume XV three other annuals have appeared. The first was "A Souvenir," published by '98. In 1900, the centennial year, the class of 1900 published Volume I of the "Laurea." The second volume of the "Laurea" was gotten out by the class of 1909. And now we present our effort, Volume XV of the "Kaleidoscope," published by the class of 1910.

THE OTTER

Middlebury College Debating Union

MIDDLEBURY, in the past, has shown her ability to enter the field of debating and to successfully cope with her opponents in that line of college activity. The victory of the college team over Dartmouth in the year 1903 and the later success of the Freshman team over Norwich during Junior Week of 1908 give abundant evidence that this is true.

That a regular department of debating has not been founded before seems to have been due, not to the lack of ability, but to the fact that the many duties of a comparatively small college have placed too great a tax on the men who would perhaps, enter into the field with greater interest, were there a sufficient number to take part in the, up to this time, more prominent activities of the college life.

It was with the idea that greater emphasis should be placed on this branch of college work and that under the changing conditions, with the advent of more students the proposition would be practical, that the Middlebury College Debating Union was organized in the fall of 1908, in the hope that the heretofore dormant spirit in this direction should be permanently aroused and kept in a state of effective activity for the future.

During the winter term, just past, the work has been actively pressed by the Executive Committee and by a series of competitive trials a strong team was chosen, which debates Norwich University in April. A second debate has been arranged for St. Lawrence University, to take place later in the year.

It is understood that plans are under consideration for a triangular league with Norwich, the University of Vermont and Middlebury, which, if put into effect, would tend to ensure the permanence of the Union in Middlebury.

This addition to Midd's list of activities should be appreciated, not only as an indication of the continued growth of college spirit, but as another opportunity for each and every one to strive for the ever increasing good name and fame of "Dear Old Midd."

ATING is a custom which has prevailed since the memory of man runneth not to the contrary." Perhaps none of the changes of the past year have more directly affected the men of the college than the reorganization of the Commons. At the beginning of the year, the College advanced sufficient money for a working capital, put Beane and Smith in charge and placed the Commons upon a cooperative basis, subject to the auditing of the College Treasurer. As a result better board than ever before has been served at a moderate price. The number of boarders is variable but at present about forty survive.

The Commons have also served as a convenient meeting place for smokers, rehearsals, small dances and the like.

The Club was organized in the winter term of the present year. Its purpose is to get the faculty and students together in discussions of current political questions, and of local college interests; to get the students, especially, into open discussions of a general nature. The first program was given on February 10 and included a short address by President Thomas. Among topics for general discussion or prepared papers have been, "Current Events," "Debating," "Conditions," "Washington Celebration," "Junior Week," "The New Campus," "Baseball," and "Relative Values in College." The meetings are held in the Chapel and are open to all.

That Chapel Bell

That Chapel Bell, that Chapel Bell,
How many a tale its discords tell
Of crazy Greek and German text,
Of flunked "Exams" professors vexed—
That Chapel Bell, that Chapel Bell,
How many a tale its discords tell!

How oft my breakfast had to wait,
'Twas Chapel time, and I was late.
How oft I wished that Chapel Bell
Were in the deepest depths of Hell
That Chapel Bell, that Chapel Bell,
How many a tale its discords tell!

I've been in many a railroad wreck,
Played football, got it in the neck;
But these seem trifles, sad to tell,
Whene'er I hear that Chapel Bell.
That Chapel Bell, that Chapel Bell,
How many a tale its discords tell!

And so 'twill be when I am gone,
That Chapel Bell will still ring on,
While other tutors, other Profs,
Will joy in flunking other Sophs.
That Chapel Bell, that Chapel Bell,
How many a tale its discords tell! [Ex.]

Early in the winter term, several students interested in the game organized under the name of "The Chess Club of Middlebury College." Only men students who play the game were admitted to membership. A tournament was arranged for, in which the contestants are divided into groups of three, the winner in each group to be entered in the finals, and to play the winner of each other group. The one winning the largest number of games in the finals will be declared the winner of the tournament.

The roll of members, as arranged into groups for the tournament, is as follows:

If a base line measured from the southeast corner of Painter Hall to the northeast corner of the Chapel is 120 ft. 6 7-8 inches, and the angle $\Theta = 33^\circ - 27' - 19''$, how much ice at -9°C . would be melted by the heat evolved through the fall of a 14-inch iron sphere from the tip of the Chapel spire, friction of the atmosphere disregarded.

III

If the arc lights sputter and go out at 9:20 p. m. is it necessarily a sign that the power-house fireman is a Canuck? an Irishman? If so, why so? If not, why not? Does this always hold true? Suppose the barometer was at 75.4 c. m. and 17°C .?

College or University?

UNIVERSITY
HISTORY AND PHILOSOPHY OF EDUCATION

May 5, 1908.

President John M. Thomas,
Middlebury College,
Middlebury, Vt.

My Dear Sir:

I find that Mr. M___ was a student in one of my courses some nine or ten years ago, but with the numbers which I have I find it impossible to recall any impression of Mr. M___ and hence am unable to comply with your request. The records show that one course was satisfactorily taken but beyond that I have no basis of judgement.

Very truly yours,

Mr. M_____ spent a good deal of time to attend that large and celebrated University. He was not only a student in the course referred to by this Professor, but he did advanced work under several others of the department. It cost him a good bit of money. He accepted a position in a western state, and desiring to come East again, referred to his old university Professor, with confidence that he would commend him according to his deserts. The above letter was the result.

Would Professor Howard ever be obliged to write such a letter concerning a student in one of his classes in Pedagogy? Would Professor McGilton "find it impossible to recall any impression" of a student who had worked in his laboratory? There are some distinguished names on the roster of _____ University, but what do they profit, if they "find it impossible to recall any impression" of even the advanced students who have been under them?

"Caddy" is our senior member. His cares before he came to college wore him out to the very roots of his hair. He has a strong ambition to be a fusser which predominates even his tutoring. He is very self-confident and his "I'm not quite sure but I thought," uttered in shrill soprano tones, is enough to win the heart of any instructor.

William Hoyt Carter

Ferrisburg, Vt.

This black-haired, white-tied, evangelical appearing object blew into town from the suburbs of the "Ancient City," in the year of our Lord 1906. Why he did it, we don't know. Boreas and the Indian Maid alone can tell. Since then, fussing and football (with emphasis on the former) have kept him quite busy. He has some original ideas on low-neck dresses, race suicide, the Y. M. C. A. and the prevention of cruelty to animals. But inasmuch as he is bigger than we are, we won't air them here.

Raymond Millard Coleman

Chester, Vt.

"Camp's" biggest mistake was entering with 1909. Now that he has seen the error of his ways, he devotes his time to fussing and the sporting news columns. He is authority on all "world records" and recognized "champions." His worst failing is his bad disposition. He is very pugnacious, can't take a joke and never wastes a smile.

Richard Aiken Currier

Willsboro, N. Y.

"Dick" is one of our prize speakers and aspires to be the Demosthenes of his age. His chief endowment is his sonorous voice, like a steam calliope, which he persistently cultivates with a merciless disregard of the peace of the "dorm." When he is not reiterating Webster, he displays his genius in the realm of deductive logic.

George McMillan Darrow

Middlebury, Vt.

This innocent looking specimen lives in mortal terror of something, for we can't make him draw his eyebrows down. His voice doesn't exactly suffer from palsy, but he has a funny way of twitching his head when he talks. Occasionally he goes into ecstasies over his brilliancy and covers his face with one of those cartoonists' grins. Basketball and natural science delight his fancy.

Harry Allen Farrar

Chester, Vt.

Born in the suburbs of Chester. Educated at Chester High School, happened to hear of a certain college named Middlebury, some forty miles to the northward, and came here to investigate the mysteries of pedagogy. He refuses to let any one know him, and his one idiosyncrasy is his method of blinking his lashes.

Ray Lyle Fisher

Middlebury, Vt.

"Pick" is a terror to the athletic world. When it comes to bucking the line—well, most of the athletes in this part of New England bear the impress of his number eights upon their anatomy. According to down-state authorities, he is one of the greatest twirlers that ever graced a diamond. Despite his excellency in all athletics, from pole-vaulting down, "Pick" takes an active part in college life and never neglects his particular bit of fussing.

Egbert Charles Hadley

Middlebury, Vt.

Here is a choice product of aristocracy. Always all spick and span and painfully consistent with the demands of Dame Etiquette. As a business manager he needs no introduction. He simply calls and takes the cash, and no bloodhound can vie with him on the trail of a "Campus" tax. He is also a parliamentary shark and his seat now awaits him in Congress. His particular activities are after-dinner speech-making, tennis and cosmopolitan fussing.

Robert Fletcher Hunt

New London, Conn.

"Bobby" is our sport. He introduced himself to Midd. as Bulkeley's invincible prize speaker, but has never had a corner on the blue ribbon in that line. No, he doesn't talk all the time, but keeps from oblivion the tongue-twisters of his vocabulary. He delights in slang, pipeology and foreign travel to parts of the British Isles. He plays football, as the bridge of his nose will testify, and has a mania for week-end visits on football trips. But in the role of our advertising manager his hot air has served him well.

Erwin Bruce Hallett

Clyde, N. Y.

We got this thing from Harvard a short time ago, and regret not knowing more about it. But rumor has it that "Tubby" is captivating in the glare of the footlights. He aspires to be a doctor, but if he annihilates patients in the manner that he does specimens in the bug course, we hope there will be plenty of ministers in his neighborhood.

Harold Denio Leach

Bristol, Vt.

This weary looking individual at the side of the page is our business manager. Between the Kaleidoscope finances, the football schedule, and fussing, "Brick" has his hands full. In fact, we doubt if any man with normal colored hair could carry his load of responsibility. Nevertheless "Brick" is doing well, although we daily expect him around again with that pained expression after a tax.

Lyman Alton Morhous

Port Henry, N. Y.

"Lymie" is a tow-headed, blushing creature, and asked the editors to have his picture colored to show the peculiar shade of his locks. He resides in Port Henry, lives in Ti and pays an occasional visit to Midd. His taste has been perverted and he don't guess there are any girls here like those from Ti. He did manage to stay here long enough to capture the first Merrill prize, and joined the Glee Club with an anticipation of a concert across the lake.

Charles Watson Murdock

Crown Point, N. Y.

"Charlie" is the noble looking youth with the counter-clock-wise undulation of the frontal hirsute adornment. He is somewhat of a violinist, and possesses the excessive growth of hair necessary for a famed artist. He is also a financier (?) and rumor says he is poetically inclined. Such of his ebullitions as we have examined show the strong influence of Chaucer (cf. lines to Mary Cawkins). Tho' a math. shark, he is contemplating along with the other members of the Tete-a-tete Club, a master's degree in Philosophy.

Harlan Sylvester Perrigo

Potsdam, N. Y.

Here is the senior member of our book-store firm. When he came to college he abhorred girls and dreamed of the golden key. But now "Perry" divides his attention in helping Olive Get-ah-man and in coaching the fussers' nine. His chief ambition is to demolish the walls of our library by his stormy entrances and exits from its peaceful sanctum.

Melbourne Jabez Pond

East Berkshire, Vt.

His name is truly patriarchal and he intends to raise the ministerial profession to higher levels of honor. His chief endowments are a deep bass voice and a slow, long drawn out speech. We know him as the author of those chapel-stage treatises on "Morality," which suffice for a week of prayer. We prophecy the departure of his congregations if he mounts the pulpit in the snail-like manner that he rises on his feet. "But," "moreover," "indeed," "on the one hand," etc., shows his accuracy as a Greek translator.

Paul Dunton Ross

West Rutland, Vt.

Paul is one of the West Side aggregation. He has donated his small frame to nearly every field of sports and has fractured his small anatomy in nearly every conceivable manner. He inherits paternal aspirations for an M.D. Recently, however, during a fit of despondency, he contracted laboratory physics and since then has been thinking seriously of a career as instructor in the higher math.

Robert Child Ryder

Vergennes, Vt.

"Wa'al, now, by Judas, Mister, this comes from Weybridge and is going to be a lawyer." And maybe it will, for in this bucolic youth is much of perseverance and patience. The former characteristic came in handy at the last track meet, while the latter has recently enabled him to combat a series of severe bodily afflictions according to biblical precedent. Rob's face is in all the Glee Club pictures, and snatches of song from his carolling voice may be heard throughout the dorm. from 3.45 a. m. until 8.30 p. m.

George Edward Shaw

Moriah Center, N. Y.

Behold our editor-in-chief. His abilities need no eulogy. He is tall, well-built, and his curly hair is prematurely sprinkled with gray. He is not much of an athlete, but has distinguished himself in the mathematical world. He talked of leaving us last year, but his good sense prevailed and he is now delving in science and his ΦBK key is already made. He is also one of our prize speakers and keeps up his end as a fusser. [Not guilty.—Ed-in-C.]

Herbert Emerson Worden

Rye, N. Y.

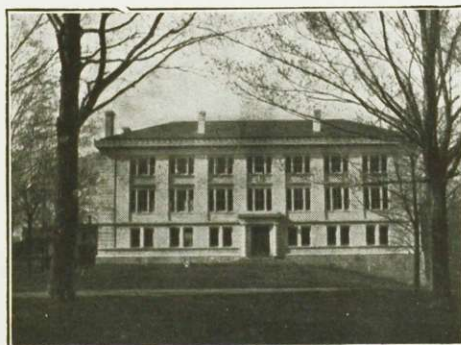

We realize that the endorsement for this article should be urgent and lengthy to make up for the deficiencies of the accompanying fac-simile. "Herby" is better known as "Puddle" owing to his connubial state with Pond in his Freshman year. He early startled his Latin instructor and created a reputation for himself by his copious citation from the classic authorities. His only ambition is to excel Harkness, which he will do if it takes a man of one ability.

Guy Maynard Wright

Bristol, Conn.

This always wears a flannel shirt and a sapid smile and answers to the appellation "Tute." He never closes his mouth and always smooths his auburn curls. He is a capable student, quite a basketball player and of late has taken to fussing. He can tell you all about Bristol fishing-rods and fire-arms and expects to succeed Pinchot as head of the Department of Forestry.

Woman's College

Edith Sarah Atwood

Woodstock, Vt.

It was the consensus of opinion when Edith came to college that she had come into the intellectual atmosphere much too soon for one of such tender years. But she is a very precocious little miss. Her blushes soon won the heart of "Bobby" and she now intends to reside in the town of Manchester when she completes her college career.

Maude Edith Avery

Middlebury, Vt.

Maude is an inquisitive little body. She is an exponent of Bacon's theory of "Whys" and lives up to her preaching. Yet her queries are very innocent and one has only to refuse her an answer to call forth her very characteristic grin. Her disposition is exceedingly unique. The frequent knitting of her brows and scowling glances cast at you over the margin of her spectacles merely indicate the scrutinous, almost pessimistic bend of her nature.

Myra Anna Bagley

Rutland, Vt.

Myra is a tall, stately lady of artistic taste. When she first came to college she pursued her studies earnestly and talked of contemplated foreign study. Later, however, she won renown as the author of the now famous "Parker Roles." We are in doubt whether she will realize her early ambition, unless it be to increase her fame in writing for this actor.

Anna Louise Butler

Proctor, Vt.

"She, being pleasant to look on, what do the young men say?
Lo, she is pleasant to look on, give her to me to-day."

And it is even so with Anna, yet she finds time to worship at the shrine of the key and scroll, perpetrate these biographies and mix up in about everything else on the docket. Her distinguishing characteristic is absolute impartiality, as many can testify. We would like to say more, but as she is on the Board, it isn't judicious.

Gretta Ann Cater

Catskill, N. Y.

Tho' Gretta comes from Catskill, she inherits none of the drowsiness of Rip's old town. Her skill is far in excess of a cat's. When she came to Midd. she displayed marked independence of custom. She would stop to ring a door-bell, or you might find her stealing a ride on some passing farmer's sled. She is a daring athlete. Not even a costly window defies her "curves." Her voice is strong yet sweet, and she is the jolliest sort of companion. Her one oddity is her false conception of the color of her hair.

Helen Stevens Clark

West Rutland, Vt.

After taking several weeks to weigh deeply the pros and cons of college life, Helen allowed her good sense to prevail and she graced our band. She is exceedingly conscientious and a bit over sensitive at times. She has a sweet contralto voice, but she expects to take a domestic science course, specializing in the refined arts of "Cooking."

Stella Mildred Cook

Shoreham, Vt.

Stella is the personification of "primness." She never speaks save in gentle, subdued tones, and her quiet way reminds one of the "Arcadian maid." She is an active religious worker and aspires to missionary fields. The gallant sex affords no attractive wiles for her. Yet underneath her modesty lies a sparkling bit of personality with which only her intimate friends hold acquaintance.

Georgia Abigail Gardner

Middlebury, Vt.

Nay, 'tis not self-conceit, but a presumptuous, almost haughty air with which Georgie is endowed. Her tones decry the fallibility of error and her step rings with precision. But she has a strong intellect and will bring us renown in the field of library work, for she now checks books with clever dexterity.

Edith Nellie Grout

East Arlington, Vt.

Slender, dark-eyed, demure and sweet. Her gentle grace lends charm to her personality. Art and literature are her favorite pursuits, and the pages of this book give evidence of her excellence in both. She has many admirers, but shows a fondness for having Been.

Angeline May Holden

Chester Depot, Vt.

Angie is a plump, rosy type of girl, with a delightful giggle. Rumor caused us to tremble last spring, for it strongly declared that Cupid had caught her in his toils, and we had fears of the alluring beauty of the orange blossoms. But she reassured us of her longer sojourn by a recent attempt to become "learned."

Rena Richmond Huntley

Middlebury, Vt.

Here is the tiniest lady in our band. Her Lilliputian proportions cause her many a terror when Aeolus leaves his car and disturbs the campus calm. This, however, is her only care, and she lives in a wholesome disregard of the world about her. Some day we hope she will prove to you that "good things come in small parcels."

Martha Eleanor Meibert

Canal Fulton, Ohio

Martha comes from the West and takes issue with many of our Eastern ideas. Tho' she is not one of our "Three Graces," she might well vie with many a gridiron hero. She idolizes her roommate, for whose welfare she is extremely solicitous. Basketball, the Glee Club, and a mania for hearty applause seem to be her prominent activities.

Goldia Mary Monroe

Middlebury, Vt.

Fair as a rose and happy as a lark is this espoused sister of ours. Her ready smile and cheerful spirit have brightened many dark moments. Everybody likes Goldia, although of late she is becoming dignified and is somewhat partial with her favors.

Gwendolyn Morris

Fair Haven, Vt.

"Gwen" has a wealth of golden tresses. She is impetuous and free from all furrowing cares. Scores of adventures strew her path, which she relates in that nervous, hilarious way of hers. Last year she left us to investigate life at Holyoke, but co-education presented greater charms and she returned. Feeds are her specialty and you would gaze with envious eyes at seeing her paddle a canoe with "Speed."

Alice Florence Raymond

Leominster, Mass.

We strive to know her, but she is an intellectual recluse. She pores over books from dawn till dark. ΦΒΚ keys and valedictory honors haunt her dreams. May her efforts be rewarded, that she may soon leave her hermitage.

Esther Helena Shea

Middlebury, Vt.

We hardly know she's one of us—so unassuming and shy. Her form is slender and her expression kind. She possesses a voice like a nightingale's and she will some day reach the prima donna's sphere.

Ada Frances Wells

Leominster, Mass.

Ada is so quiet and inoffensive. She is not one of society's dashing belles, but makes the world better by her retired and humble life. She is a literary genius and aspires to be an authoress, having already contributed several worthy sketches to literature. The inspirations of her Muse arrest your attention in parts of this book.

Angeline Mary Wilcox

Greenfield Mass.

"Angie" is dark complexioned, with raven tresses and eyes of a darker hue. Her Indian charms have pierced the heart of "Bill," and pursue him at every turn. Tho' she is an apt scholar, we feel certain that the duties of a cottage built for two will claim her attention in years to come.

Place

Baptist Church

Time

Lecture on Tennyson

Scene I

Harris, Delano, Worden and Morhous seated on camp chairs down the aisle. All four sit up straight as though afraid of co-eds.

Prex (at close of lecture)—Let us sing number 706 and then be seated.

All rise.

Worden, sharing song book with co-ed, sings loudly:

"He is coming, He is coming."

(Shewbrooks at this instant rushes up aisle, seizes chairs and marches out.)

"Not as once He came before,

Wailing infant born in weakness——"

Harris (looks behind Delano)—Didn't he say be seated?

Delano (looking for chair)—Ya-a-s.

Harris—W—what—are—we—going—to—do?

Delano (to Worden)—Let's get out.

Worden (still singing with co-ed)—

"In the way a thousand snares

Lie to take us unawares;

Satan with malicious art

Watches each unguarded part."

Pauses to stare at Delano and Harris going out. Choir sing "Amen." Everybody becomes seated. Worden attempts to sit down on nothing, turns and glares at Morhous as if to say, "You want to bring it back." Morhous bolts for side door. Worden, still glaring, follows after, but in a somewhat absent-minded fashion.

(Curtain)

And there were others.

GRINDS

Overheard on the Campus

Freshman Gorham—"But I say his name is Mr. Barnes."

Freshman Andrus—"And I say his name is Mr. Speedle."

Micky (holding up a measuring cylinder)—Mr. Ryder, what is this object?

Ryder (rousing up from his usual deep slumber)—A—an oxyhydrogen blowpipe, sir.

Prof. H.———"Mr. D———, please use the upper part of your head a little."

Cadwell (speaking of cats)—"Yes, we started to dissect them when they were dead the first time."

Hunt (reciting)—"...? !...!!...?"

Prof. Burt—"You may subside now."

"The Dear Departed."

Cadwell—"Does the distance to that line mean the perpendicular distance or—the—the shortest distance?"

"Either."

Perrigo—"What a world of happiness their harmony foretells!"

Can you imagine

Burt, '11, in a barber shop?

Hemenway, '11, rocking twins?

Hadley, '10, chewing gum?

"Cupid," '12, with a mustache?

Miss Derby on time?

Miss Butler darning socks?

Hunt, as a funeral director?

Martha Eleanor Meibert, as "Little Nell"?

John Viele, with nothing to say?

Miss Holmes advocating woman's suffrage?

Murdock, with his hair mussed up?

"Caught in the Act."

Prof. S. (speaking of Aetna)—“The ancients believed that this was the entrance to the lower world. I hope that you will all go down there some day.”

Franzen Swedelius' age is the riddle we seek,
 Will some kind person please favor?
 Though we know he is young by the down on his cheek,
 We'd none of us call him a shaver.

O Evening, thou who bringest
 The cattle from the mountain side;
 The laborer from the toil of life;
 But O, for me most sweet, most sweet,
 Thou offerest my eyelids most blissful sleep——
 —Farrar.

Miss Brodie (translating)—“He carries cannon instead of pistols.”

Pond (in Chapel oration)—“Then and there I resolved never again to try taming a bird, feathered or unfeathered.”

In the Chemistry room.

Sanford (explaining phenomena to Juniors)—“What is the result of neutralization, Mr. L.?”

“A salt.”

“In this case what would it be?”

“Na Cl.”

“That’s right, that’s right, nothing but common salt; it wouldn’t hurt you to take some of it.”

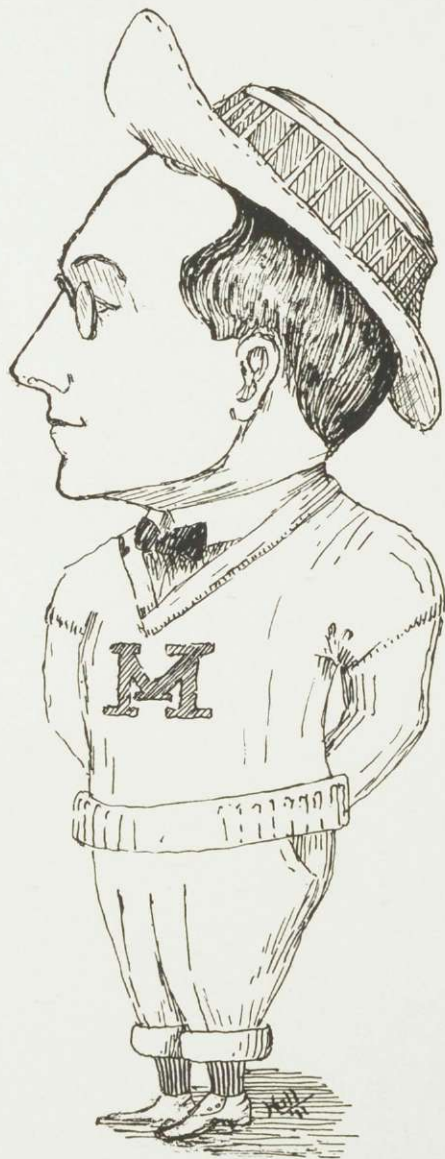

And “Bill” wondered why they laughed.

Burt, '11—

“Yet in my lineaments they trace
Some features of my father’s face.”

Twitchell (in Physics)—“The more wire you have the less force it takes to exert the same force.”

"OUR NEW COACH"

Cadwell (in analytics)—“The trouble is you have to keep thinking about the things you never thought about before.”

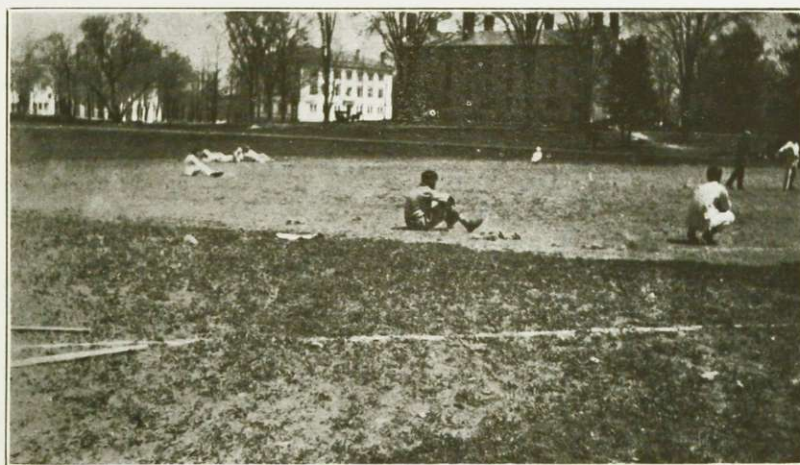

And again:

“Infinity—Goll, that’s pretty big.”

There is Billy’s dainty warble
Likewise Prexie’s loping jump,
Which presents a living picture
Of the movements of a pump.

Betty with his graceful oscillation,
Brynne with his vibratory swing,
Showing sim—ple—har—mon—ic motion,
Is a ver—y—com—mon—thing.

While behind the whole conglomeration,
Like a child that fears he’s lost,
Patters after the procession,
Herbert—Eli—Boyce.

THE GREEK-BARBARIAN GAME

In English:

Prof. W.—“I should advise that you Freshmen occasionally indulge in light reading.”

Zeke—“Professor, is Nick Carter’s Weekly light enough?”

“Was Wycliffe a heretic?”

“No, he died a natural death.”

Prof. W.—“What refuge did the weak and discouraged of the Middle Ages seek?”

Miss Gardner—“Suicide?”

Prof. Burrage (conducting rhetoricals)—“Shall we, or shall we not—ah—listen to something from Mr. Pond?”

There was a Greek sculptor named Phidias
Whose sculptorings were exceedingly hideous;
He carved Aphrodite without any nightie,
And shocked the ultra fastidious.

THE GREEKS

"Is your son still pursuing his studies at Middlebury?" someone asked of B——'s father. "Yes," said the governor, "and as near as I can find out he hasn't caught up with them yet."

Freshman—"I thought I heard a cow just then."

Senior—"No, that was Dr. Cunningham saying na—o—w."

Revised Translations:

Freshman Smith in French, renders "des vers latins" as "green Latin."

Dr. Franzen—"Huh, I suppose you mean Freshman Latin."

Nevling, '12 reads "Et aussitot, prenant ses jambes a son cou, il s'enfuit dans la direction du camp," as "And so putting his legs around his neck he started cross lots."

R. D., '11

"Old Kick" one night
When the moon shone bright,
With his lady fair went strolling.
The frogs did croak,
Then "Old Kick" spoke—
"What bird is that carrolling?"

"Hannibal was collecting supplies and (habendo delecto) holding his beloved."

Barnes, '11 (entering class and looking over seats) sotto voice, "Who has the lesson?"

Overheard in the Class Room:

Currier, '10—"Dissipation is wasted by health."

Pond, '10—"Human beings are divided into quadrupeds and fishes "

"Congress shall have the power to counterfeit."

" MABEL "

Freshman (looking at a new pair of skates)—"How much for these?"

Mr. C.—"$1.50."

Freshman—"Those are too cheap I want something about $4.00."

Mr. C.—Come in next week and I'll sell you those for $3.50

Why? "An acre in Middlesex is better than a principality in Utopia."

R. Ryder—"Because it's very fertile."

His (?) Soliloquy

O'er the green sweep of our campus
Bends down the deep blue sky;
The trees spread wide their longing arms
And list to the wind's lullaby.

But the scenery's nothing, my darling,
For what sky could ever compare
To the blue of your eyes, my darling,
And the gold of your dear, bonny hair.

I walk o'er the sweeps of the campus
And it matters not to me
If the grass be green 'neath the spreading trees,
For 'tis winter away from thee.

Prof. Burt—"Are tape worms painful?"

W. Darrow—"I don't know, sir, I never had any."

FRESHMAN PARADE

Bits of Wisdom from the Sophs

"The sponges are all found in the ocean excepting the fresh water hydrants."

"The segmentation cavity serves the purposes of respiration, circulation, and indigestion."

"Can you tell us whose brothers these were, who appear in the text of to-day?"

"They were the brothers of their sister."

Dr. Cunningham—"If you abstract all social relations with other selves from your existence what have you left, Mr. Leach?"

Mr. Leach is silent and looks embarrassed. Miss Monroe blushes. The class roars.

Dr. Cunningham—"I fail to see the humorous side of that question."

Mary had a little trot
To help her in her Latin,
Every time that Mary flunked
The pony got a spankin'.

From the chair of philosophy—"And so frequently we really see things and do not see the things which we actually do see, that is to say—" And the class looked weary.

Sunderland '11.—"Queer what a large percentage of people die, isn't it?"

Tuck '11, on Chapel stage.—"He was born in Boston at the age of two years and under the most unfortunate circumstances."

God made man and made him in a barrel,
Had a little left and made Billy Farrell.

Hunt:

"The Pope didn't want the clergy to marry, you see they—ah—usually had family troubles."

Bright Greek Student (to Prof. B.)—"Ah, I see you use a translation."

Prof. B.—"And so the scriptures are again fulfilled: 'The ass knoweth his master's crib.'"

Monroe '12 meets the head of the English department on the street.

"Good morning, Mr. Baker."

Andrus '12:

"Hide me from the day's garish eye."

Nevling '12:

"Oh, ma, may I be a dude, too?"

Miss Bagley:

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder"

Fair Junior, in Chemistry Lab.—"Oh, Professor, what am I going to do? I've spilled H_2SO_4 all over my desk and everything.

Mickey—"Well,—I'd take some H_2O and S-P-O-N-G-E and wipe it up."

WAITING FOR THE BELL

If in this volume, bound in red,
You've got a rap upon the head,
Don't grumble.

Perhaps the editors in charge,
When copy wasn't very large,
Did fumble.

The crime's committed,—gone to press,
And now before we take our rest,
In manner humble,

We ask your pardon, one and all,
And trust some pleasure you'll recall
From this jumble.

The graphic features two ornate fountain pens, one on the left and one on the right, framing a central text area. The pens have detailed engravings and caps. The central text is set against a background of a city skyline silhouette with sunburst rays emanating from behind the word 'WATERMAN'S'.

WATERMAN'S

IDEAL FOUNTAIN PEN

THE DAWN OF PEN SATISFACTION.

For examinations, class-room notes and home study, a good fountain pen is the source of continuous satisfaction. It is one of those necessary pocket acquisitions that is always useful and leads to better work. Waterman's Ideals are made of the best materials and on a scientific basis. The wide range of styles, sizes and pen points makes possible the purchase of a style which will be permanently satisfactory.

MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE

FOUNDED IN 1800

THE CENTRAL COLLEGE OF VERMONT

Equidistant from the northern and southern boundaries, and halfway between Vermont's largest cities.

On New York Central Lines (Rutland Railroad.) Four trains daily each way between New York and Montreal, via Albany, Troy, Bennington and Rutland, and four trains also between Boston and Montreal via Fitchburg and Bellows Falls.

Fare (mileage) from New York, $5.34; from Boston, $4.00.

COURSES

The Bachelor of Arts degree is bestowed on the successful completion of 180 term-hours. A term-hour is an hour of recitation per week. As a student has normally 15 hours a week, he accomplishes usually 45 hours a year, and requires four years to gain credit for 180 hours. The course may be taken in three years, if one can do the work. Latin must be studied at least the Freshman year for the B. A. degree. This course is open to both men and women.

A course leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science will be offered in 1909-10. The entrance requirements will be not less than for the B. A. degree, but substitution may be made for Latin. The design of this course is to prepare students to enter the third year classes of the best schools of engineering without examination, and at the same time to provide a thorough liberal education in literature, history, political economy, and pure science. The B. S. course is for men exclusively, and may be completed in three years, if the student shows the necessary ability and application.

The degree of A. M. is conferred upon completion of the equivalent of a year's College work in non-professional studies. The advance work leading to this degree may be taken in any one of the departments of instruction conducted by the College. The courses to be offered in 1909-10 in the Department of Pedagogy will be an excellent foundation for the degree of Master of Arts in Pedagogy.

EXPENSE

The location of Middlebury in a frugal agricultural region favors economy. Many students spend less than $300 a year, and earn much of this themselves. Especial encouragement is shown to the enterprising youth who have to help themselves. Tuition is $80 a year. Rooms for men, in comfortable stone dormitories, with steam heat and electric light, $30 a year.

SUMMER SESSION

July 6th to August 13th an additional session of the College will be held, with instruction in Latin, English, German, French, Spanish, Psychology, Ethics, Pedagogy, History, Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Biblical Literature, Manual Training, Arts and Crafts, Domestic Science, Physical Education, Photography, etc. Registration, $5; tuition, $10. Tuition free to Vermont teachers and clergymen.

For information as to College entrance, or concerning the Summer Session, address

DEAN WALTER E. HOWARD, Middlebury, Vt.
